

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

This Was the Song.

We have forgotten. This the rowers knew,
Straining within the gallery's railing
Life bent to breaking, while their great souls grew
Strong in the ancient purpose of time.
This was the song whereby they made their flight.
Laughing as they swung. God! how the cord bit through!

This was the song the pagan lovers
heard,
Wakened by flowers in a rose-red
dawn.
Through the bright dew they fled, like
ocean stirred
With oarings. Bare and beautiful they ran,
Holding each other's hand. Through
leaves they were gone, Cleaving the silver pool with flash of bird.

Carven in stone. Ahydes holds it fast—
With little Eastern dancer with her tula.
Wild Erin's faeries crying for the past.
They keep the deathless secret of the word
Hid behind Nature's lips, who, grave,
remote,
Guard from this profanation till the last.

Not unto us who hide the ebb and flow.
The senseless order of the tide we know
We have forgotten to be free, we know
Only the iteration of the day.
The priceless moon, white pearl without a flaw,
Drowns in the muddy stream of worldly
woe.

We take the petty part and leave the whole.
Lost to our ken the song of Nature's youth—
The great barbaric winds that sweep the soul
And leave it empty of all else but truth.

C. M. L. S. Meeting.

The Confederate Memorial Literary Society met Wednesday morning with a full attendance. Mrs. C. W. P. Brock presided, and the following ladies were present: Mesdames L. C. Daniel, T. A. Cary, W. A. Crenehaw, J. Borton Hill, Thomas S. Booneck, Misses Mattie P. Harris, Minnie A. Baughman, Mrs. Taylor Ellyson, Miss Julia Ann Grant, Mrs. R. A. Patterson, Mrs. N. C. Shelton, Mrs. W. D. Freeman, Miss Ellen L. N. Northern, Mrs. John W. Gordon, Miss Nannie Archer, Miss Bettie Ellyson, Mesdames J. Enders Robinson and James D. Crump.

The corresponding secretary reported a number of interesting letters and read a copy of the report to the U. D. C. convention, to be held in San Francisco in October. This report is printed in full below. It was ordered published in full below. It was ordered published in full below. It was ordered published in full below.

Following is the annual report: To the Convention of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, assembled at San Francisco, California, October 1905:

Each succeeding year makes the importance of the work of the Confederate Memorial Literary Society more evident, and impresses upon the members more strongly the great value of the museum, and the necessity for a wise guardianship and use of its contents. The value at home and abroad, and the different data of historic fact, are recognized and sought. Relics are given and loaned.

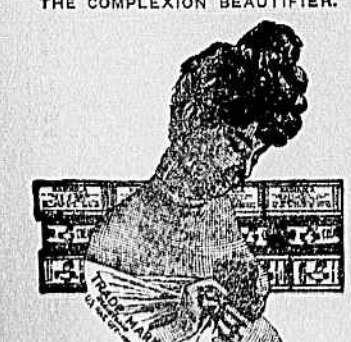

It is with pride and no vainglory that the society comes to you this year with a record that will cause you to feel gratification, that this work is yours, as well as ours; that it belongs to you, as to us, and that in years to come, when the women who have labored to establish this museum, and the soldiers of our cause, shall pass over the river and rest under the shade of the trees, this memorial of them and their cause will become your charge. This duty has, in part, been taken up by some of the Daughters, in pursuance of resolutions adopted by your sixth annual convention, in 1890, on motion of Mrs. R. E. Park, of Georgia, as follows:

"As this treasure-house (the Confederate Museum at Richmond, Va.) of the relics of our beloved cause belongs not more to Virginia than to the other States of the Southern Confederacy, I move that each State division of the United Daughters of the Confederacy appoint a museum committee of three, of which the State President shall be a member ex-officio; the State regent shall be chairman, and the other two members shall be appointed by the State President.

"This committee shall have charge of the interests of the museum and keep it before the State division.

"I move further that each State President shall, after presenting the matter

IN THE HIGHLANDS.

ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON.

Other selections from this author, his portrait, autograph and biographical sketch have already been printed in this series.

In the highlands, in the country-places,
Where the old plain men have rosy faces,
And the young fair maidens
Quiet eyes;
Where essential silence chills and blesses,
And forever in the hill-recesses
Her more lovely music
Broods and dies—

Oh! to mount again where erst I haunted;
Where the old red hills are bird-enanted,
And the low green meadows
Bright with sward;
And when even dies, the million-tinted,
And the night has come, and planets glinted,
Lo! the valley hollow
Lamp-bestarred.

Oh! to dream, oh! to awake and wander
There, amid delight to take and render,
Through the trance of silence,
Quiet breath!

Lo! for there, among the flowers and grasses,
Only the mightier movement sounds and passes;
Only winds and rivers,
Life and death.

to her State convention, recommend the appropriation of a sum of money, varying according to the financial condition of her treasury, for the running expenses of this sacred treasury house, the burden of which has heretofore been borne by the Confederate Memorial Literary Society.

"I further move that each State President shall recommend that each chapter in her division set apart annually a sum, according to its ability, for the maintenance and enrichment of the room assigned of its own State."

Of the Kentucky chapters, twelve contribute annually to the support of their room. Mississippi, Missouri, South Carolina, California, and Virginia chapters contribute for their respective States, but all of the States have not yet fallen in the line of this most important work. South Carolina has gone a step further than the other States, and has secured through her regent an appropriation from the Legislature. It would add greatly to the value of each room if each could have a fund for purchasing relics. During the past year the most approved method of cataloguing has been adopted by some of the rooms. Doubtless others will be catalogued as soon as the vice-regents can secure the necessary funds.

How Expenses Are Defrayed.

The current expenses of the museum, amounting to about two thousand dollars annually, are defrayed from the annual membership and the door fees. A small nucleus for an endowment fund has been collected, and to this is added every life membership fee, which is only ten dollars, without further obligation. And we urge the necessity for increasing the endowment fund by donations.

The new catalogues are now in hand, showing an increase of more than double the relics recorded in the old edition.

An occasion of much interest was the unveiling last spring of the portraits of Judge John H. Reagan, Confederate Postmaster-General, given by the U. D. C. of Texas; a portrait of Stephen H. Mallory, Secretary of the Confederate Navy, given by his son; a portrait of C. G. Memminger, Secretary of the Confederate Treasury, given by his son.

On the same day the U. D. C. of Maryland presented and unveiled two objects of unusual value—one being a bust of General Lee, the other an exquisite stained glass window in the Maryland room, and executed by Tiffany.

This window is a copy after the superb monument erected in Baltimore by the Maryland U. D. C. to the Maryland Confederate soldiers. This monument is called "The Spirit of the Confederacy," and is the finest conception of the sculptor Baskett.

The return of the Confederate flags, so long in the possession of the United States government, marks an era in our history.

This gracious act of the government was reciprocated by the return, on the part of our society, to the Governor of Massachusetts, of the flag of the Eighteenth Massachusetts Regiment, which had been a relic of the Virginia room.

We detain you to relate an incident of peculiar interest: Some months ago the Rev. James P. Smith (who was aide to the Federal army) was lecturing in the North on Gettysburg. After the lecture a gentleman of the audience came forward and presented an old bust of General Stonewall Jackson to Dr. Smith. The gentleman stated that the bust had been given him by General Halleck, of the Federal army, whose headquarters after the surrender of Richmond was in the White House of the Confederacy, called the Davis Mansion. The bust was brought by Dr. Smith to the museum and placed in its former position on the mantel in the office of President Jefferson Davis. It has been proven that this bust was made by Volk, who made a death mask of General Jackson while the latter's body lay in state in the Capitol in Richmond, Va.

The memorial volumes in the Solid South are called specially to your attention. They are increasing yearly, and contain the "Rolls of Honor" of Confederate soldiers.

Solid South Room.

The Solid South room was created for the benefit of those Daughters who are not in the seceded States. Its need is shown by the fact that Daughters from the following non-seceded States are contributing with pride to its contents. The States are: California, West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, New York, District of Columbia, Indian Territory, Oklahoma, Montana, Nebraska, Utah, Illinois, Oregon.

The Tennessee room has had valued additions through the new regent, Mrs. M. R. Picher, among them a portrait of her gallant husband, Mrs. John P. Poe, regent, has added much to her Maryland room. Mrs. John V. Gilmore, regent, is doing successful work in Louisiana.

Miss has seemed at times a lull in the reception of relics, and we hear of museums starting in different States. We pray that the States, their regents, their Daughters, will remember that this is their museum, and we entreat that they will bear in mind that this Confederate Memorial Literary Society is their representative, and is working for them, their honor and glory.

Virginia is necessarily bound to be well represented here; of necessity her relics and memorials are here; and as the sons of other States were so noble and great, these other States are and were as grand. Our aim, our cure and longing is that their representation in the museum shall do them full justice.

When the thousands of visitors come annually, and authors come for information, artists for illustrations, we are eager to show them the part taken by our sister States in the great struggle of 1861-1865; to give them the true record of each State, standing side by side, bound together here in a visible and tangible record of imperishable truth and glory.

Richmond's Revolutionary interest, added to its fame as your capital, gives it a niche in history held by no other State in America.

We ask your aid, and ask that we may be privileged to add you, and that together we will urge that the aim and object of all Confederate organizations shall be to bring forth the truth of Confederate history, the glory due Confederate soldiers, and to keep strong and true love among ourselves, for our comrades, and for the cause we represent.

Respectfully submitted,
MRS. LIZZIE CARY DANIEL,
Corresponding Secretary of the Confederate Memorial Literary Society, No. 720 East Franklin St., Richmond, Va.

To the Daughters of the Confederacy, in Convention Assembled, at San Francisco, Cal., October, 1905:

The Confederate Memorial Literary Society, in charge of the Confederate Museum at Richmond, Va., respectfully asks your attention to the full annual reports for the year 1905, of the officers, vice-regents and chairman of the museum, the same to be published in the "Confederate Column" of The Times-Dispatch newspaper, of Sunday, December 17, 1905, at Richmond, Va.

Every Daughter should secure a copy of these reports of our "Sacred Treasure House." Orders can be filed for copies at office of said newspaper to December 10, 1905.

The new catalogue of the museum, containing 300 pages, descriptive of all the relics in the museum, is now ready for sale, at thirty-five cents a copy, postage prepaid. For catalogue apply to

Yours respectfully,
MRS. J. ENDERS ROBINSON,
Recording Secretary C. M. L. S.,
No. 113 S. Third Street, Richmond, Va.

State Convention U. D. C.

Richmond will witness the State convention of the United Daughters of the Confederacy in November next, from the 8th to the 11th of that month.

Questions of importance to be discussed then will relate to the Fitzhugh Lee monument and the annual contribution to the endowment fund of the Confederate museum. Mrs. Joseph H. Brown, president of the museum, makes an earnest request that the different State chapters of Daughters shall instruct their local camps in the filling up of the roll of honor of every Confederate soldier, these rolls to be placed for preservation and future reference in the Confederate Museum. This request is all the more important because the ranks of Confederate veterans are rapidly thinning, and the information they alone can supply will be lost, if it is not soon garnered.

The blank rolls are furnished, free of charge to every camp, and the only favor asked is that they be returned when completed, for binding and cataloguing, the museum paying all expenses.

As there will be so many delegates to the November convention, those who have been appointed by the chapters are requested to send their names to Mrs. N. Randolph, No. 511 East Franklin Street, Richmond, Va., so that accommodation may be provided for all.

As this will be the first assembling in Richmond since the union of the two divisions of Daughters, it will be important upon members of the Richmond Chapter to render on occasion meeting will be on the second Wednesday in October and a full attendance is requested for the perfecting of necessary plans and arrangements.
